

KESHER

Our Seventy-Fourth
Year!

FROM RABBI SAM

Another New Year?

We learn in the Mishna – Rosh Hashanna, Chapter 1, Mishna 1 – that there are 4 separate dates each year that are to be considered as a New Year observance. This statement often sounds strange to us today as we have come to think of a New Year as happening once in the secular calendar and once in the High Holy Days. We may recognize that there are different ways of counting the years, however, in the secular world depending on what we are counting. There is a New Year for schools (at the end of August into the beginning of September), for tax payments (April 15), fiscal years for businesses, etc.

So, also for the Rabbis, there were different “New Years” for different aspects of Jewish life and practice. There were cycles of the festivals (beginning on Nisan 1 in the spring), for tithing cattle (Elul 1 at the end of the summer), for the numbering of years (Tishri 1 in the fall), and for the ages of trees (Shevat 15 in the middle of the winter). The tree New Year falls on the fifteenth (in Hebrew Tet-Vav, pronounced “Tu”) of the winter month of Shevat – this year February 8. In Israel the rainy season has moistened the soil, the weather is warming, and it is tree planting time. The earliest blooming trees – the almond – are showing their first delicate pink buds. The New Year was required for ritual purposes as well.

There are specific rules concerning at what age of a tree the fruit may be used and what sacrifices of fruit were to be offered. The age of a tree was determined, ritually, to be based on this 15th of Shevat. Thus a tree planted on the 14th was a year old the next day and one planted on the 16th waited a full year to be a year older.

For over a thousand years, the observance of the 15th of Shevat (Tu B'Shevat) was a minor festival in the holiday cycle. It was marked with the eating of a new fruit (preferably from Israel) for the year (allowing for the Shehecheyanu to be recited) and special prayers. In more recent times, the Jewish National Fund used this festival as a time to especially emphasize the opportunity to purchase tree certificates as a way of supporting JNF efforts to improve the land of Israel. Many liberal community seders have been created to tell the story of trees, reconnect to Israel, and strengthen our commitment to our environment.

This year the holiday falls on a Tuesday night and Wednesday. We will be holding a family program during the Religious School hours (4:00 – 6:00) on Thursday February 9 for all members of the congregation. At that time we will eat some special fruits, hear some Rabbinic stories on trees, and learn of modern forms of observance in Israel.

We will also have a planting project to reconnect to our agricultural roots in a small way. Planting pots will be provided for each Religious School student. All are welcome to celebrate the gifts of trees in our world.

An open letter to the Temple Israel Community

Great News!

The future of Temple Israel of Dover continues to shine bright and we will continue to function as a vibrant and thriving Jewish community. As you may know, our challenging financial future has been at the fore front of many discussions over the past few years. Although we are not completely out of the woods yet; I can tell you that things are looking better. The board has worked diligently over the past months to streamline our budget. We have taken on a part-time rabbi to help reduce our professional expenses. With the help of Stuart Scharff, Steve Giguere and Sam Kirshman; Centrix Bank has reduced our interest and lowered our mortgage payment. We sold off a portion our land and used the profits to reduce the principal on our mortgage. With the sale we also negotiated with the contractor, John O'Neil, to have him convert our heating system from propane to natural gas. We expect this will reduce our heating costs by 30%. He is also committed to bring the necessary cable connections up to our building at no cost to Temple so eventually (hopefully soon) we will be have high speed internet and cable television options.

This is indeed great news, but we must continue to fundraise and increase our membership to strengthen the Temple into the future. We are all in this together – this is our Temple! We need your continued support. Now is a great time to volunteer. Think about bringing in new members. Consider joining a committee.

Next year we will be celebrating our 75th anniversary with many events to carry us through the year. We need your help to make next year and the years to come a success!

There are many people to be thanked, too numerous to mention so:

THANK YOU to everyone.

Please know that each and everyone of you is a valued Temple member. If you have not yet experienced a Friday evening or Saturday morning service or a study session with Rabbi Sam; please join in and enjoy his wonderful words of wisdom!

L'Shalom

Bubeh Meiseh (A Quickie)

(From the files of Ann Isacoff at Langdon Place)

I was telling my friend a story: "Rosenstern and Goldberg were having a conversation..." when my friend interrupted.

"HOLD IT! Always with the Jewish jokes...Give it a rest. Why do they always have to be about Jews? Just change the names to another ethnic group for once!"

So I started again, "Hashimoto and Suzuki were talking one day at their nephew's Bar Mitzvah..."

Sisterhood News

In January we sponsored a two part series with the Israeli Shlichah (from the Jewish Federation of NH) Ore Ayah Dagan. She spoke of her life growing up in a small new town in Israel and the experiences of her grandmother being a member of an Olympic swim team in Europe in the 1930's during the rise of the Nazi regime.

Look for more exciting programs, including a Challah making session with our own Jay Diengott.
